Mechanism

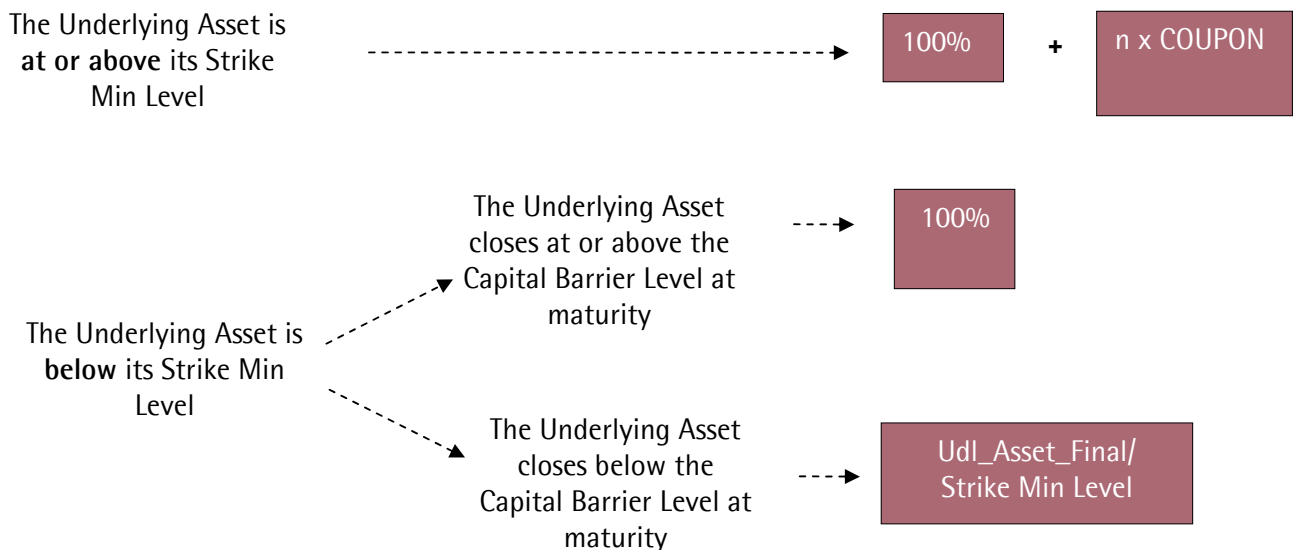

Athena Strike Min is a structure that will allow the investor to get high Potential Coupons through an early-redemption mechanism.

Early redemption possibilities:

- On each Trigger Observation Date, if the Underlying Asset is at or above the Trigger Level, the product is early redeemed at 100% and pays a Coupon multiplied by the number of periods elapsed, as follows: $100\% + \text{Coupon} \times (n)$
- Otherwise, no Coupon is paid and the product continues

At maturity: there will be 3 cases for the reimbursement (see chart below)

Strike Min Level (% of the Initial Level)	80%	80%
Trigger Level (% of the Strike Min Level)	100%	100%
Capital Barrier Level (% of the Strike Min Level)	-	-

Potential Coupon	0%	2 x 7.00% = 14.00%
Redemption	-	100% of the invested nominal

2) Intermediate case scenario

At maturity, the Underlying Asset is below its Strike Min Level but closes above the Capital Barrier Level. Product is redeemed at 100% but no Coupons are paid.

▪Market Risk

The market value of a structured security may vary significantly under the influence of various factors, such as the performance level of the underlying assets, their volatility, changes in interest rates or exchange rates, particularly if the security is denominated in a currency other than the investor's reference currency, the economic and financial context of the country(ies) that is/are concerned, and the remaining duration of the security to its maturity.

For structured securities with an "issuer call" enabling early redemption, prospects of reinvesting redeemed total amounts may be unfavourable.

For structured securities linked to credit markets, the bankruptcy risk of the various issuers of the underlying bonds changes chiefly according to their quality (reflected by their rating – see issuer risk below applied to the underlying bonds) and to the macroeconomic context. The investor must be aware of the quality of the issuer(s) in which investments are made. In addition, bond prices may vary considerably between the moment bonds are issued and their maturity date. This price variation is linked to interest rate changes on the market.

▪Structuring Risk

Structured securities being based on several complex parameters, the investor must have a perfect understanding of the mechanisms of the structured security offered and the consequences arising from the chosen redemption formula or valuation method, depending on different market forecasts and the nature of the underlying(s).

▪Issuer Risk

The structured security is not issued nor guaranteed by BNP Paribas Wealth Management which is acting only as distributor of the security. Each investor assumes both the issuer's credit risk and the potential guarantor's risk as defined in the security legal documentation. The issuer's and its guarantor's credit ratings reflect the independent opinion of the relevant credit rating agencies and are not to be considered as a guarantee of the credit quality. In case of the issuer's bankruptcy or indeed that of its guarantor, the investor could suffer partial or total loss of the initially invested capital.

▪Liquidity Risk

In the case of structured securities, product liquidity lies entirely in the hands of the issuer, who may or may not undertake in normal market conditions to buy or sell the security from/to the investor according to certain criteria defined at the outset (price, periodicity and minimum amount). Should he wish to exit before the maturity date, the investor may thus be unable to sell part or all of his financial asset, or may have to sell at a considerably unfavourable price. Finally, certain securities becoming relatively illiquid may face high volatility and a decline in their market value, thereby reducing the accuracy of their valuation in portfolios or even making such valuation impossible.

▪Financing

The purchase of financial instruments by means of borrowing brings with it additional risk. On the one hand, additional guarantees (additional assets as collateral) may be required. On the other hand, the loss incurred when prices move adversely is likely to be higher than without any borrowing. Fluctuations in prices of pledged financial instruments can therefore have a negative influence on the ability to repay the loans. It is important to clearly understand that the leveraging effect produced by buying financial instruments through the means of borrowing results in proportionately greater sensitivity to fluctuations in price, and therefore offers the prospect of higher gains, but also at the same time the risk of higher losses. In summary, the higher the leverage is, the greater the possible loss can be.

▪Conflicts of interest

Various potential and actual conflicts of interest may arise from the overall investment activities of the parties involved in the transaction, their investment professionals and their affiliates. In particular, the manager or its affiliates can offer/manage other investment vehicles which interests may be different to the interests of the holders of the securities described herein.

▪Capital Protection

For capital-guaranteed products, the guarantee concerns the capital invested and is applicable at maturity of the product. During the life of a product, market value goes up and down depending on various elements (change in the underlying asset, volatility, change in interest rates ...). In the case of early redemption (not planned at the outset) if market liquidity so permits, the investor may bear a partial or total loss of the capital initially invested.

Furthermore, in the case of an EMTN or Certificate, the capital guarantee may not be effective if either the issuer or its guarantor defaults.

For non-capital guaranteed products, the capital invested does not benefit from any guarantee. Therefore, in the case of an unfavourable change in the underlying asset, the investor may bear a partial or total loss of the capital initially invested.
